Monthly Commentary

October extended a positive run for the funds which has benefitted both our relative and absolute performance.

Our exposures to responsible investing have been our standout performers. Investments in the Schroder Global Energy Transition Fund, the iShares Clean Energy ETF and the iShares Global Water ETF have been exceptional, as have our more indirect plays via holdings such as Liontrust and Gresham House (two asset management stocks that have a focus on sustainable investing).

Stocks within the ESG / SRI universe have witnessed great momentum, and in part, a re-rating of their multiple that one must be observant of. Nonetheless, the trend is apparent, and appears set fair for the foreseeable. We continue to look for the next Gresham House, Liontrust or equivalent.

Looking ahead, we remain as optimistic about the future performance of the funds as we have been for some time.

Our cash and gold offers us a platform from which we can perform, whilst our value stocks are attractively undervalued and we expect a material rerating as and when dividends come back on stream in a sustainable fashion, paired with continued momentum and potential in our responsible growth stable.
